INFORMATION AND SUPPORT FOR PEOPLE AFFECTED BY ADHD

10 ADHD: Neither Gift nor Curse

The audience expected a debate when Doctor Barkley met Doctor Hallowell on-stage in a historic plenary session at CHADD's annual conference last November. What they received was much more important.

by Karen Sampson Hoffman, MA, and Pamela Mercer

One or More Houses, No Executive Functions: ADHD and the Modern Family

How does ADHD impact family functioning? Can damage from chaos and conflict be prevented? How can divorced parents coordinate multiple households? A clinical psychologist offers some practical guidance for ADHD-affected families.

by Judith M. Glasser, PhD

Survival Tips for the Spouse Who Doesn't Have ADHD

Can you build a better marriage when your partner has ADHD, and you don't?

by Terry M. Dickson, MD, ACG

20 Parenting "Difficult" Teens

What can parents do when faced with defiant behavior from their children or teens with ADHD?

By Bryan Jaffe

24 Responding with Compassion

You can learn to pause and find your most skillful reaction when challenged by raising a child with ADHD or dealing with your own executive function deficits.

by Mark Bertin, MD

28 Become an Empowered Parent

CHADD's new online advocacy training will help parents learn how to advocate for their children with ADHD in today's world of school budget cuts and reduced services.
